Getting Lower Rio Grande Valley cities to Address Global Warming through Energy Efficiency

The Sierra Club is getting more cities on board the Cool Cities train! We're asking mayors of cities all over the Valley area to make a commitment to address global warming by making their cities more energy-efficient. We are forming Cool Cities teams in Brownsville, Harlingen, McAllen and Edinburg, and we are looking for people who want to be part of this positive, solutions-oriented campaign. This is an excellent first-time volunteer opportunity that has a specific objective and a limited time commitment. You do not have to have any experience or be a member of the Sierra Club to participate. Although we're focusing on the larger cities, we'll help you form a team for any town in the Valley region.
